

MARCH 22

World Water Day

flocard

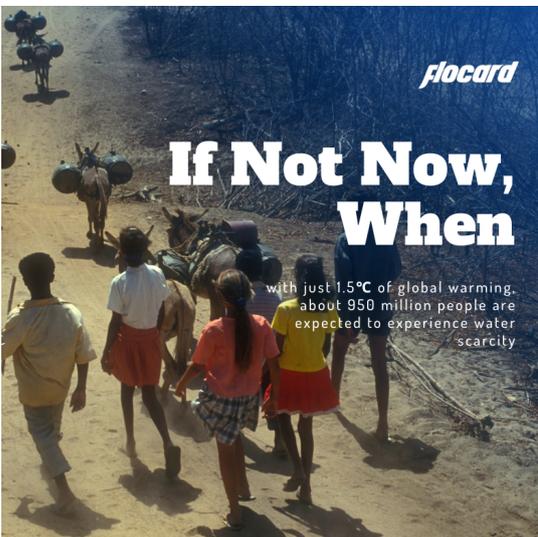

Planting trees is the simplest way to safeguard our planet from a severe water shortage.

This World Water Day let's intend to save wastage of water and protect it from exploitation and pollution.

Watch a video...

The sixth warmest year on record, 2021, is expected to see a one-foot rise in sea level by 2050. Coastal flooding will increase dramatically over the next 30 years, swallowing all terrestrial life on the planet.

Read more...

Droughts have a variety of effects on us, including harming livelihoods, raising the risk of sickness and death, and causing mass migration. Droughts serve as a trigger for the spread of epidemics in a variety of forms all over the world.

Read more...